A Buyer's Guide To Choosing Gold Bridal Shoes

Finding gold bridal shoes may seem like a task that is likely to be very difficult. After all, most bridal shoes are white and gold bridal shoes may be fewer and farther between than shoes that are white, cream or off white. However, if gold bridal shoes are what you want for your bridal outfit, here are a few tips on how to find and choose the right pair.

Gold bridal shoes are available in a range of different materials. There are ones made from gold leather and others that are made from fabric that has been dyed or treated so that they look as if they are made from gold. The material you choose is largely up to you although if your dress is made from silk or satin you may want to make sure that your shoes are made from the same material. This is especially important if you will be wearing a dress that is short enough for your shoes to be visible.

High heeled shoes are always a beautiful and classy choice for a wedding day. They can make your legs look slender and toned. This is one reason why many bridesmaids and brides opt for shoes with a heel. The height and style of heel is an important thing to think about. Think about where the ceremony will take place. If it will be outdoors on a lawn or beach a very narrow heel may not be the best choice for your gold bridal shoes. This is because narrow heels can dig into the sand or grass and cause problems when it is time for you to walk or move around.

The heel height on your gold bridal shoes is as important as the thickness. If they are too high they may be too uncomfortable for you to wear all day long. Then, you may end up needing to take your shoes off or feel that you are unable to wear them all day and all evening. Make sure that the heel height is something that you can handle and are used to. This is not the time to break out the six inch stilettos if you normally wear flats.

Remember to buy your shoes early enough that you can wear them while having your dress fitted. They can affect how your dress will be hemmed. You should also break them in so that they are comfortable and will not cause sores or blisters. Gold bridal shoes can be found both in stores and online so you have a lot of choice when it comes to style and shape.
